

PRAIRIE BIRD CEMETERY

ADAIR COUNTY, MISSOURI

This cemetery brought to you by Stacy

The Prairie Bird Cemetery began in 1878 when Andrew Jackson and Jane Kelly Garloch gave land, about one acre, on which to build a church and have next to it have a cemetery. It was deeded for this purpose in 1881. This cemetery and church was originally, and still is officially, named Pleasant View, but in the minds of Prairie Bird community it assumes that name.

Andrew Jackson Garloch's Father, Henry, came to the Prairie View neighborhood of Adair County with his wife, Ester, and ten children, eight boys and two girls, in 1855 from Virginia. Most of this family is buried here with families related by marriage.

The abandoned church standing next to the cemetery (1997) is the third church built there.

Information concerning this cemetery was from Elsie Shum of Kirksville and Josephine Morrow of Macon County , who are both descendants of the Garloch (Garlock) family.

Information from the stones was copied by Elsie Shuman and Elizabeth Laughlin.
